Medical Device Manufacturer MRPC Adds Southeast Territory Sales Manager

BUTLER, Wis. (Jan. 5, 2010) – MRPC, a leading single-source provider of medical device components and assemblies, has added Kenneth KostECKi as its new Southeast Territory Sales Manager.

KostECKi joins MRPC with more than nine years of engineering experience in the injection molding and extrusion market. Most recently, he served as a technical support manager for an international manufacturer of implantable medical devices. KostECKi received a bachelor's degree in composite materials engineering from Winona State University and a master's degree in business administration from the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater.

"We're excited to welcome Ken to our team," said Mark Brandstaetter, vice president of sales and marketing. "His strong technical background and experience in the medical market will be valuable assets when engaging potential clients."

KostECKi will be responsible for developing new business opportunities in the Southeast, with an emphasis on two-material and long-term implantable solutions.
